CHAPTER 5

"Oh, please don't cry," says the Swallow. "You are making me very wet and very sad." The Swallow is a soft-hearted bird.

"Maybe you can help me," says the Happy Prince.

"How can I help you?" asks the Swallow. "I am just a poor little bird. You are a beautiful solid gold statue."

"I am not solid gold," says the Happy Prince. "My body is made of lead. There is lead under the gold leaves."

"But why are you so sad?" asks the Swallow.
 "When I was alive I was happy all the time. Everything was beautiful," says the Happy Prince. "Now, I am high above the city and I can see the beautiful things, but I can also see the misery."
 The Swallow feels very sorry for the Happy Prince.
 "How can I help him?" he thinks. "It is getting cold and I must fly to Egypt."

CHAPTER 6

"Look," says the Happy Prince, "far away over there. There is a poor house in a little street. I can see a woman. She is sitting at a table. Her face is thin and sad. Her hands are rough and red because she is sewing all day long."

The little Swallow looks, too. He can see the woman in the poor house. He can also see the boy. The boy is very sick. He has a fever. "The boy wants oranges, but his mother hasn't got any money," says the Happy Prince. "Please, little Swallow, can you see the ruby in my sword?"

"Yes I can," answers the Swallow. "It's beautiful."

"Please, take it to the poor woman," says the Happy Prince. "I cannot move. I am stuck here."

"But, I must go to Egypt," says the Swallow. "My friends are waiting for me. It is nice and warm there."

"Swallow, Swallow, little Swallow," says the Prince. "Please stay one night with me. Please be my messenger. The sick boy is thirsty and his mother is very sad."

"I'm sorry," says the Swallow, "but it is cold here. I can die from the cold. I must go."
